DROWNED IN THE BOW RIVER

Alberta, Sept. 28th.
Sergt. Major Brooke, of the N. W. M. P., J. Didsbury, J. E., of Gleichen, and A. B. supra, an interpreter, were drowned in the Bow River Saturday afternoon near Gleichen.

The three, accompanied by an Indian scout, started out for Dunbow Indian school. They undertook to ford the river. It is surmised that they got off the ford, the conveyance in which they were driving was overturned and they were swept away and drowned.

The Indian scout escaped only by holding onto the tail of his horse, which took him out on the south side of the river. Owing to the inability of a crossing being made at present, he has not yet been communicated with. Both the wagon horses were drowned.

Sergt. Brooke has been a member of the N. W. M. P. for twenty years and he has been stationed at Gleichen. He has been of special assistance to the force on account of his very valuable detective work. He was a member of the coronation contingent, a year or more ago.

Alberta.—On Friday last Constable Nicholson and Goulter of the N.W.M.P., arrested at Cheadle the man giving the name of Stern, consequent upon the issue of the warrant for his apprehension for stealing some carpenter tools at Strathcona some months ago. He was conveyed to Edmonton on Saturday in the custody of Constable McEneaney, at which place he is to be tried.

LOCAL

—The Bank of Nova Scotia will open a branch in Calgary.

—The regular meeting of the Edmonton city council will be held this evening.

—Mr. C. E. Bevington has been granted a license for his hotel, the St. Elmo, on Fraser Avenue.

—A partridge flew up main street this morning, and striking against Gallagher and Hull's butcher shop window, killed itself.

—The launch Alberta Belle has been commissioned to take the choir of the Methodist church down the river several miles to the picnic grounds below Brandt's mine next Saturday afternoon.

—Last Thursday morning two leather hand bags were lost between the Windsor hotel, Edmonton, and the C. P. R. station, Strathcona. The finder may leave these at the Bulletin office.

—The Macleod Gazette suggests that the Raymer cup at present held by Fort Saskatchewan, be made emblematic of the championship of Alberta, all teams in Alberta being allowed to challenge for it.

—Two large cabbages, grown in this district, are on exhibition in Gallagher and Hull's butcher shop window. They are both of a monstrous size, and are perfectly developed. One weighs twenty-six and a half pounds.

—A gang for the power house for fire alarm purposes, from the fire station direct to the power house, has arrived. A. W. Ormsby and men are rapidly installing it and it will be in operation by Saturday next.

—In a letter to the Bulletin, enclosing an advertisement inserted in another column, Joe B. Wyllie, formerly of Mays and Wyllie, states that he has accepted a position with the United Goldfields Colliery Company, six miles from Frank, southern Alberta. The company have under construction a large number of coke ovens. A large force of men is required and they are difficult to get. There is a good demand for chimney builders as well as regular brick layers.

—Mr. E. T. Hammett returned on Monday evening from Wetaskiwin, where he had gone to attend to matters in connection with the establishment of a branch of the Bank of Nova Scotia in Wetaskiwin. Mr. Hammett purchased John West's corner, and a temporary bank building will immediately be erected. The bank in Wetaskiwin will open at once. It is said that the Bank of Nova Scotia intends opening several other branches in this district in the near future.

—The Calgary Albertan in its last issue says: "The Fort Saskatchewan baseball club did not accept the challenge of the Calgary team to play again for the Raymer cup. Before the ninth innings was well completed they announced that they had decided to play no more baseball this season. This action is quite in accord with the cowardly method adopted by the men to secure the cup." We are informed by the Fort Saskatchewan team that nothing would please the Fort boys better than to have the Calgary team come after the cup immediately.

—Free Press.—Mr. H. H. Ross, of Medicine Hat, has just completed a voyage from that town to just above Grand Rapids at the mouth of the Saskatchewan. This, in itself, is an event of rare occurrence, but in Mr. Ross's case the voyage was more remarkable in that it was made in an 85-foot steamer. Mr. Ross is an enthusiast on the navigation of the Saskatchewan river, and has built and equipped a very fine stern wheeler to develop it. His boat is electrically lit, and is fitted with every convenience for comfortable travelling. As showing the possibilities of the Saskatchewan as a waterway, Capt. Ross has already developed a considerable traffic, both in passengers and goods.

—A. W. Ormsby, city electrician, has been rewiring sections of the electric light system. An additional thirty lights have been installed in Walter's mill and office, in order to enable the men to work longer hours to keep up with the immense demand for lumber in Edmonton and district. Cushing Bros. have added an additional twelve lights, and have had several alterations made in the present lighting arrangements. A new line is being erected on Fifth street north from Jasper avenue to Athabasca street. About seven residences will thus be lighted on this street. Another extension will be made to the new public school. About three hundred lights were added to the electric light system during last month.

Six Months Ago

Some people said the prices of city lots were so high that there was no speculation in buying. We now know that had a person gone to any one of the real estate offices in the city with $10,000 and thrown it on the counter, saying, "Give me anything you have in the west end up to that amount," he would have made a splendid investment. Too cautious people are trembling on the brink today, fearing to make the plunge, like their fellows of six months ago, and in another six months they will be looking at some other fellow carrying off the profits, while they will feel like kicking themselves. Prices are firm now and are bound to increase. What you can buy today you may not be able to buy tomorrow. The Great West Land Company have a large list of Main street lots, lots on First and Second streets, lots everywhere in the city. A few lots at from $75 to $150. Invest today.

FROM OTTAWA

Bulletin Correspondence.

At the opening of yesterday's proceedings Mr. Scott drew attention to a reported interview with Mr. Stuart, director of the meteorological service, in which he had said that there had been 24 hours snow fall at Regina on the 13th, the day of the big storm in Manitoba. Mr. Scott said that his information was that there had not been more than one or two inches of snow, and complained that the official of the government who was especially charged with correctly reporting the weather in all parts of Canada, had given out such a misstatement. The cause of Mr. Scott's reference to the matter was the fact that the report of the storm of the 13th had been circulated in all Canadian newspapers, and cabled to Britain, as though it was universal throughout the Canadian west, and very destructive as well. These reports had not been contradicted in the press or by the government weather bureau, and now that the chief of the weather bureau the week after the storm publicly exaggerated its severity, it was necessary that public notice should be taken.

There is a good deal more in this report and in the way it was handled by the news service of the country than appears on the surface. The western Canadian wheat crop has become an important factor in the world's supply, and a report of serious damage to it has a measure of effect on the grain market of the world; and not only the grain market, but still again, not only on the grain market and the stock market, but on the money market, upon which many projects for the Canadian west depend. To put it shortly and plainly, the reports of the storm were deliberately arranged and used for the purpose of influencing the grain market, the stock market, and particularly the prospects for securing money for the construction of the Canadian Northern and Grand Trunk Pacific railways through the northern part of the Northwest.

There can be no question that the incorrectness of the reports at first sent out and the fact that they were not subsequently limited, amended, or contradicted, proves that there was intent in the method by which they were placed before the public. The facts appear to be that the storm started in the south and travelled northward, doing great destruction in the northwestern States and considerable damage in Manitoba, but did not reach either the eastern part of Manitoba, or the northern or western parts of the Territories. That it was severe in its central portion must be admitted, and also that it did damage; but had the reports been confined to the actual extent and severity of the storm, although the effect upon the grain and stock markets might have been somewhat injurious, they would have been beneficial rather than otherwise to the Canadian Northern and Grand Trunk Pacific projects, the greater part of whose territory was outside the range of the storm. This was the feature which the news service was careful to keep in the background, and which the meteorological department should have kept in the foreground instead of its chief official deliberately and with full knowledge of the facts, adding to and confirming the incorrect and injurious reports already circulated. Messrs. Boyd, Oliver, Higgins, and Charlton supported Mr. Scott in his position.

The Grand Trunk Pacific project the day and night until 12:25 without any substantial progress being made. The opposition have some twenty-five amendments which they propose to move to the bill, and upon each of which they are prepared to carry on a debate. Their attitude on Monday was that because the Grand Trunk Company was not a party directly to the Grand Trunk Pacific agreement the country had no sufficient guarantee that the agreement would be carried out, and particularly that the eastern portion of the line to Quebec and the Maritime provinces parts, would be operated. They did not find fault with a line or a letter of the contract with the Grand Trunk Pacific, nor did they throw any doubts upon the assurance that that company would live up to its agreement, but they wanted the Grand Trunk company bound to the same extent, or even to a greater extent, than the Grand Trunk Pacific company. If the government had been dealing with the Grand Trunk company, it would have been right and proper that the Grand Trunk should be bound under the agreement, but when dealing with the Grand Trunk Pacific, if the arrangement had merit of its own, there was no reason why the Grand Trunk should also be bound. Had the circumstances of the Grand Trunk been such as to make it desirable or to warrant it in building a transcontinental line as a specifically Grand Trunk project, it would no doubt have applied to parliament for the authority and the assistance. But the Grand Trunk company is now a gigantic and complicated undertaking with responsibilities attaching to it of such a nature and on such a scale as to make it practically impossible as a business proposition, for it to undertake in its own name, and subject to those existing responsibilities, a project as great as it now constitutes. It would be unfair to the Grand Trunk share and bond holders to load that company with the responsibility of an enterprise of such magnitude as the Grand Trunk Pacific, and it would be just as unfair to load the Grand Trunk Pacific with the huge responsibility of the Grand Trunk company. The opposition, being perfectly aware of this fact, and knowing, therefore, that the Grand Trunk company could not in the interest of its share and bond holders, and that the government would not in the interest of the Grand Trunk Pacific, agree to amalgamation, were perfectly safe in making the demand, thereby hoping to create the impression in the public mind that there was some unfairness or impropriety in the relations between the Grand Trunk and the Grand Trunk Pacific.

They went further and undertook to make it appear to the people of the Maritime provinces that if the Grand Trunk were not made a party to the Grand Trunk Pacific contract there was also a probability, or at any rate a possibility, that the terms of that contract would not be carried out so far as relates to the hauling of traffic to the ports of the Maritime provinces. It is almost inconceivable that the people of these provinces could be expected to believe that the construction of 700 miles of railway, which would bring the traffic created across the whole continent by the new line to their ports by the most direct route, would be to their benefit no matter what the name of the railway company concerned, or what the agreement with it. They were asked to believe that the Grand Trunk Pacific company, having given security to the Dominion to the amount of five million dollars for the payment of interest on the cost of the 700 miles of railway necessary to reach Quebec and the Maritime province ports, and being thereby compelled to earn that interest, would not use the road in respect of which they had agreed to pay the interest, when by its use they could earn a Canadian winter port in practically the same distance as the Grand Trunk's present port of Portland. The whole purpose of building the railway was first to create traffic and then to handle it entirely through Canadian territory and Canadian ports. To do this the most direct route was chosen and the most reasonable terms of operation were arranged. For the first time in their history the Maritime provinces got a living, fighting chance to do Canadian winter trade; and it seems the height of absurdity that the argument is made that this very road, under this very arrangement, is to be a means of preventing them from securing that business. After the House had been occupied all day in listening to the efforts of the leader of the opposition and three or four of his followers to hammer this idea into the minds of the House and country, the amendment was voted down and several other amendments of much the same nature were discussed, but no conclusion was reached. September 22nd, 1903.

BUFFALO IN THE NORTH

Facts About the Buffalo That Are Rounding the Northern Prairies.

A large number of people know that somewhere north of Edmonton a herd of buffalo have their pasture ground. The real location of the range and the number of the buffalo is not as well known. The present feeding ground of these fine animals is on a great plain, extending from opposite Fort Providence, on the Mackenzie River, to the Peace River. There is a lake in this city which takes its name from the buffalo and is called Buffalo Lake. This is the home of the herd of two hundred and sixty buffalo, the last survivors of the millions that once roamed the country. They are now far from the abuse of a gun and as far as man is concerned, are not disturbed except by an occasional Indian or a passing Indian. The buffalo are under the protection of the Dominion government, and neither white man nor Indian is allowed to kill them. They have been thus protected for a number of years now. Last year the term of protection expired, but it has been again renewed for another three year term. The buffalo roam in three herds, and the different herds graze comparatively near one another. At times of danger the three herds mingle together for purposes of protection.

As already stated, these buffalo are being protected by the government. The closest watch is being kept on them, and the killing of one of them by an Indian or trader would be followed by signal punishment. There is another danger though, that is being overlooked by the government. In this northern region, large timber wolves abound. They follow closely on the tracks of the buffalo herd and at the first opportunity pounce on the buffalo calves and kill and eat them. Further, when the old buffalo become too weak to follow the herd, they are set upon by these wolves and killed. Indians say that for the last three years they have not seen a single buffalo calf's track. The wolves breed extensively, but as soon as the calves are a few days old and commence to follow in the rear of the herd, the wolves make quick work of them. The northern timber wolves are of large size and strength. It is not that the buffalo are unskilled in the science of self protection, or when attacked, as they frequently are, by the wolves, they immediately form into a circle and, facing the wolves, defy them to make a break in the circle. The wolves, too, are wary, and if possible by suddenly rushing on the herd start them running. Then it is that the young calves and the old buffalo are caught and killed. The Indians do not kill the buffalo, and respect the close season with the greatest care. Steps should be taken to remedy this wholesale destruction of the buffalo. If the wolves are to continue their devastations, the close season might as well be removed and the Indians and traders allowed to secure the animals.

Mr. Nagle, of Hilsop and Nagle, fur traders at Fort Resolution, who is a Justice of the Peace for the Mackenzie district, suggests that the Indians be given a bounty on the pelt of every wolf killed in that district. As is well known, no poison is allowed to be set out in the north country. However, Mr. Nagle is of the opinion that if the Indians were allowed to set out poison for these wolves for one season, a large number of them would be killed off and the danger to the buffalo minimized. This could be done under the direction of the Northwest Mounted Police or the local Justice of the Peace, who could also pay the bounty to the Indians. Provided this were done there is not the slightest doubt but that the buffalo would increase in numbers very rapidly.

Some steps should be taken immediately, for it seems too bad that the last wild herd of these noble animals should thus be left to destruction by wolves.

NORTHERN NAVIGATION

Outside of Edmonton comparatively little is known of the extent of the navigation in the great northern waterways. The different trading companies and the Roman Catholic mission have steamers plying on these rivers and lakes. The mission steamers are used entirely for mission work and the carrying of supplies. The traders' steamers are used for carrying provisions and for carrying out the furs. The immense distances covered in the north allow the steamers time to make but few trips in a season. The following are some of the principal steamers at present engaged in northern transportation work:

The Wrigley is a Hudson Bay Company boat, plying between Fort Smith and the mouth of the Peel River in the far northwestern portion of the Mackenzie River district. The Wrigley is 82 feet long, with a 16 foot beam. It makes a trip from Fort Smith to the Peel River, one yearly trip is made to Peel River, one to Good Hope, and another to Fort Norman, all on the Mackenzie River.

The steamer Zeta, owned by Hilsop and Nagle, plies between Fort Smith and the Little Red River. It is 62 feet long with a twelve foot beam. It makes a yearly trip to the Red River in the far north, to Fort Providence and to Fort Rae.

The Netta, owned by Hilsop and Nagle, plies exclusively on Great Slave Lake. It is 55 feet long, with a ten foot beam.

The Graham, owned by the Hudson Bay Company, is a stern wheeler. It is 120 feet long, with a 26 foot beam, and is flat bottomed. It plies from Fort Smith to Fort McMurray, and makes one yearly trip.

The Alpha, belonging to Hilsop and Nagle, is 55 feet long with a nine foot beam. It plies between Fort McMurray and Fort Smith.

The St. Joseph is a Roman Catholic mission steamer, 50 feet long with a ten foot beam, and plies between Good Hope and Fort Smith.

The St. Alphons, a Roman Catholic mission steamer, plies between Fort Smith and Fort McMurray. It is 50 feet long and has a ten foot beam. Besides these there are a number of smaller steamers, which are used principally for local work in different places in the north.

VICTORIA

An important real estate transaction involving the sale by the Hudson Bay Company to Messrs. J. A. Mitchell & Son, general merchants, of the company's old historic trading post, formerly known as Fort Victoria took place here this week.

In the "buffalo days" this post was one of the most important "trading posts" on the upper Saskatchewan and one of the earliest missionary centres.

The property purchased by Messrs. Mitchell & Son includes 107 acres of land in the centre of Victoria settlement, and commands the principal ferry crossing on the Saskatchewan east of Fort Saskatchewan.

A new frame school house is being erected on a new and more central site and will be completed in time for occupation by opening of winter. It is expected that the attendance will be considerably increased by the attendance of a number of Galician children who have formerly been debarred from attendance on account of the distance to the present school. The present board of trustees, under the able chairmanship of P. Erasmus, Esq., are showing considerable activity in the matter.

Mr. Stephens, the veteran C. P. Railway land examiner, has been here for some time selecting land in the vicinity. He is very favorably impressed with the district.

Considerable settlement is going on in this district and a good class of farmers are coming in. Messrs. Cinnamon Bros., from Clover Bar, have taken up a section near here and broken a large area ready for next season.

Other Clover Bar farmers have been looking over the district and will also homestead here.

A movement is on foot to establish a grist and saw mill here. Mitchell & Son offer a free site and aid towards a bonus.

A Galician named Simeon Gronwell was yesterday committed for trial by Justice Mitchell on a charge of attempted rape on a Galician woman. Harvesting is over except stacking which is being retarded by continued wet weather. The yield and sample will be good. Little or no damage has been done by frost.

THE FAR NORTH

Interesting Items About the Great North Land of the Dominion.

Mr. A. von Hammerstein returned on Saturday from a trip to the north where he went some two months ago to test the region, which was known to contain oil, tar, asphalt, etc., for oil. He went north in the interests of an eastern syndicate which is prepared to develop any favorable prospects. Mr. Hammerstein had a patent Wagner test drill, which enabled him to test to a depth of 250 feet. He has brought back samples of coal tar, paraffine and crude oil but declines to say anything regarding the results of the borings. Several gentlemen belonging to the syndicate will arrive in Edmonton from the east in a few days to confer with Mr. Hammerstein and it is probable that there will be more to announce in a week or ten days. It is said that somewhere in the north there exists an immense basin of crude oil. The tar wells, which have been known for years to the Indians and traders, throw up the oil in a sluggish liquid form. These are in themselves a natural phenomena which enable one to draw practically exact conclusions regarding the existing formations beneath them. The well of gas at the Pelican rapids is still burning, and throws out a flame about forty feet high. It has been burning now for about five years and shows no signs of diminishing. On the contrary, it seems to be burning stronger than ever. The piping and the other equipment which was left there by the oil company boring party in 1901, which was said to be worth at least six thousand dollars is completely ruined. The ice has carried most of the piping away and has upset and broken the derrick, while the steam boiler has been rolled sixty feet up the shore and crushed by the immense power of the ice.

Mr. Hammerstein met a party of four Indian boatmen near the Drowned Rapids, who had been waiting below the Grand Rapids for about forty days awaiting a trader from Edmonton. They at last gave up and had to return to their station. The Indians were in a half starved condition, having lived entirely on rabbits for a month. They were very pleased to see Mr. Hammerstein and struck up a close acquaintance with his "grub pile."

The Hudson Bay Company's outfit was met, close to the Pelican rapids and Hislop and Nagle's, and W. Connor's fur outfits were just making the portage on the Cascade rapids. On his way back to Edmonton, Mr. Hammerstein overtook Mr. Swiggert with his fifty odd packs of furs. These contain some very fine furs, including some silver foxes and some specimens of the muskox intact for mounting purposes. The traders in general had a very prosperous season, and are taking down with them larger trading outfits than ever before.

Encouraged by the recent good years, and the outlook for another plentiful fur year, several new traders are in the field. Mr. Robinson, formerly of Athabasca Landing, will trade this winter at Lake Wabiscaw, and has his goods already at the Pelican portage. Ed. Williams, who has up to the present been a roving trader, will be settled also at Lake Wabiscaw. He was met taking down a large scow load of trading goods. On the island at the Grand rapids the traders were portaging their goods, preliminary to running the rapids. Colin Fraser, of Chipewyan, was there with three boatloads; J. Reid with one boatload for Fond du Lac; two boatloads for Ben Hursell, of Smith's Landing, and three boatloads for P. Loutit, of Chipewyan. Mr. Gordon, of Fort McMurray, has not yet left the Landing with his two boatloads, but is expected to in a few days. He is said to be the last trader to set out for the north this year.

COST OF GAMING INVESTIGATION

Toronto, Sept. 25.—The gaming investigation cost Ontario $85,000. The government has just straightened up the accounts. It is understood that the commissioners, Sir John Boyd and Chief Justice Falconbridge each received $100 a day for their services, or $5,200 altogether, as the enquiry lasted 52 days. The government's estimate of the cost was $35,000, and that amount was placed in the supplementary estimates and passed by the legislature last session. Private counsel who were retained in the case will not be paid by the government.
